Deposit Account Authorization to Charge Issue Fee

This notice supplements the Official Gazette notice, dated July 1, 1983, published at 1032 O.G. 33 on July 26, 1983.

The rules of practice were amended effective Oct. 1, 1982, at 37 CFR 1.25(b) to state that: "A general authorization to charge all fees, or only certain fees, set forth in 37 CFR 1.16 to 1.18 to a deposit account may be filed in an individual application, either for the entire pendency of the application or with respect to a particular paper filed."

The Patent and Trademark Office will treat broad language to "charge any additional fees which may be required at any time during the prosecution of the application" as authorization to charge the issue fee on applications filed on or after Oct. 1, 1982.

Requests for Reconsideration in Patent and Trademark Office Disciplinary Proceedings

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
Summary: This notice of proposed rulemaking sets forth a proposed amendment to 37 CFR 10.156. The purpose of the amendment is to prescribe a date on which the decision of the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks in a Patent and Trademark (PTO) disciplinary proceeding becomes final agency action for purposes of judicial review, and to provide for one request for reconsideration or modification of such decision by a party. Interested parties are invited to comment on the proposed amendment.
Dates: Written comments must be received on or before Dec. 1, 1988 to insure consideration. No oral hearing will be conducted.
Address: Address written comments to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231 marked to the attention of Harris A. Pitlick.
For Further Information Contact: Harris A. Pitlick by telephone at (703) 557-4035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: Present rules do not explicitly provide for requests for reconsideration or modification of Commissioner's decisions in appeals from initial decisions of administrative law judges in PTO disciplinary proceedings. 37 CFR 10.156 presently provides that such a Commissioner's decision is a final agency action.

In a recent case, Klein v. Peterson, 6 USPQ 2d 1556 (D.D.C. 1988), a first decision of the Commissioner was withdrawn and ultimately replaced with a second decision. The respondent sought judicial review of the first decision under 35 U.S.C. 32 after its finality had already been withdrawn and then sought judicial review of the second decision. The authority of the Commissioner to, in effect, reconsider his decision in a disciplinary proceeding was challenged in the cited case. The district court held that since there was no express statutory authority proscribing the Commissioner from reconsidering the first decision, there was implicit authority to do so consistent with long-standing precedent in the area of federal administrative law.

While Klein confirmed that the Commissioner has inherent authority to reconsider a decision, at least before an appeal has been noted, the PTO believes that a rule explicitly providing for a time in which requests for reconsideration may be made by a party and a date certain for when Commissioner's decisions in disciplinary proceedings become final will both promote greater certainty in this area of disciplinary proceeding practice and eliminate the possibility of multiple appeals. The rule proposed is not intended to preclude the Commissioner from sua sponte reconsidering or modifying a decision in a disciplinary proceeding at any time where conditions warrant and a respondent's due process rights are not violated, consistent with long-standing federal administrative law precedent.

37 CFR 10.156 is proposed to be amended as follows.

Paragraph (a) would be amended to provide that, subject to paragraph (c), the decision of the Commissioner in a disciplinary proceeding becomes final agency action upon the expiration of twenty (20) days after entry thereof.

New paragraph (c) would be added to provide for a single request for reconsideration or modification by the respondent or the Director of Enrollment and Discipline, if made within 20 days of entry of the Commissioner's decision. Such a request would have the effect of staying the effective date of the decision. The decision by the Commissioner on the request would be the final agency action in a disciplinary proceeding and would be effective on the date of entry.

Other Considerations

The proposed rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration that this proposed rule change is not expected to have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354) because in merely codifying the inherent right of the PTO to reconsider its decisions sua sponte, the proposed rule extends the right to each party in a PTO disciplinary proceeding to seek reconsideration.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this proposed rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increases in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this proposed rule has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the national government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

This proposed rule change does not contain a collection of information subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

List of Subjects in 37 CFR Part 10

Administrative practice and procedure, Courts, Inventions and patents, Lawyers, Trademarks.

For the reasons set out in the preamble, it is proposed to amend 37 CFR Part 10 as follows wherein removals are indicated by brackets and additions by arrows:

PART 10-REPRESENTATION OF OTHERS BEFORE THE PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE

1. The authority citation for 37 CFR Part 10 would continue to read as follows:

2. Section 10.156 is proposed to be amended by revising paragraph (a) and adding new paragraph (c) to read as follows:

§10.156 Decision of the Commissioner.

(a) An appeal from an initial decision of the administrative law judge shall be decided by the Commissioner. The Commissioner may affirm, reverse or modify the initial decision or remand the matter to the administrative law judge for such further proceedings as the Commissioner may deem appropriate. ►Subject to paragraph (c) of this section, a decision by the Commissioner does not become a final agency action in a disciplinary proceeding until 20 days after it is entered.◄ [Entry of a decision by the Commissioner is a final agency action in a disciplinary proceeding.] In making a final decision, the Commissioner shall review the record or those portions of the record as may be cited by the parties in order to limit the issues. The Commissioner shall transmit a copy of the final decision to the Director and to the respondent.

* * * * *

►(c) A single request for reconsideration or modification of the Commissioner's decision may be made by the respondent or the Director if filed within 20 days from the date of entry of the decision. Such a request shall have the effect of staying the effective date of the decision. The decision by the Commissioner on the request is a final agency action in a disciplinary proceeding and is effective on its date of entry.◄

Action: Final Rule.

Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is amending its rules governing admission of Government employees to practice before the PTO in patent cases, Part 10 of Title 37. Those rules presently permit officers and employees of the Government to be registered only if their official duties include preparation and prosecution of patent applications. A recent decision of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia has held that these rules are partially invalid. By these amended rules, the PTO has conformed the rules to the court's decision and has eliminated the "inactive" status designation of registered attorneys and agents who became employed by the Government, but do not engage in the preparation and prosecution of patent applications.

Effective Date: Nov. 4, 1988

Supplementary Information: Attorneys and agents must be admitted to practice before the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) in patent cases. 35 U.S.C. 31; 37 CFR 10.10(a). Part 10 of Title 37 is being amended to allow Federal employees who fulfill the requirements for registration set forth at 37 CFR 10.7 to have their names placed on the PTO register of attorneys and agents.

In the past, the rules provided that an officer or employee of the Government whose official duties include preparation and prosecution of patent applications may be registered. 37 CFR 10.6(d). Under the rule, all other Government employees were not to be registered. If a registered practitioner became a Government employee, the rule required that the petitioner's name be endorsed as "inactive" if the employee's duties did not involve the preparation and prosecution of patent applications.

In a recent decision by the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, portions of 37 CFR 10.6(d) were held to be invalid. In that case, an attorney presently employed by a Federal agency petitioned the Commissioner, requesting that his name be placed (with an inactive designation) on the register of attorneys and agents entitled to practice before the PTO in patent cases. His petition was denied in view of 37 CFR 10.6(d). In re Athridge, 230 USPQ 470 (Comm'r Pat. 1986). Following the Commissioner's decision, the attorney sought judicial review in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. The court determined that 37 CFR 10.6(d) was invalid to the extent that it precluded registration of an otherwise qualified individual solely on the basis of his status as a Government employee. Based on its determination, the court held that the employee could be registered and designated as "inactive." Athridge v. Quigg, 655 F. Supp. 779, 3 USPQ 2d 1391 (D.D.C. 1987). See also Athridge v. Quigg, 4 USPQ 2d 1656 (Comm'r Pat. 1987).

Amendments to 37 CFR §§10.6, 10.10 and 10.23(c) were proposed in a rulemaking notice published in the Federal Register at 53 FR 20871-20872 (June 7, 1988) and at 1091 Official Gazette 38 (June 28, 1988).

Interested parties were requested to submit written comments on or before Aug. 9, 1988. Written comments were submitted by two individuals and one organization.

Section 10.6, as amended, removes §10.6(d). The effect of removing §10.6(d) will permit otherwise qualified Government employees to be registered to practice before the PTO in patent cases. Registration, however, will not relieve any Government employee from otherwise complying with conflict of interest requirements, e.g., 18 U.S.C. 203, 205, 207, applicable agency regulations and personnel practices, and applicable codes of professional responsibility.

Section 10.10, as amended, refers to restrictions on practice in patent cases imposed on Government employees, Office employees, and former Office employees.

Section 10.23(c), which sets forth specific forms of misconduct, is amended by revising paragraph 10.23(c)(13) to reflect the redesignation of paragraph 10.6(e) as §10.10(b), and by adding new paragraphs (c) and (d), which provide that actions contrary to the restrictions on practice in patent cases set forth in amended paragraphs 10.10(c) and (d) will be treated as misconduct by the Office.

One commenter expressed concern that under §10.10(b) as proposed, a former member of the patent examining corps could be denied registration (or reinstatement) as the result of filing an application that is assigned to his or her former examining group by the Office even though when filing the application, the practitioner sincerely did not believe the application would be assigned to that group. It is noted that §10.10(b) contains the same provisions with respect to applications filed by former patent examiners as former §10.6(e). A former member of the patent examining corps would not be denied registration for filing an application assigned to his or her former group if immediate action is taken to withdraw from further prosecution of the case when he or she finds out that the application has been assigned to his or her former group. Actionable misconduct occurs when the individual knowingly acts in violation of the undertaking signed under §10.10(b). See §10.23(c)(13).

Two comments were received suggesting an addition to §10.66 that would correspond to newly proposed §10.10(d). However, §10.66 relates to Canon 5 of the Patent and Trademark Office Code of Professional Responsibility (A practitioner should exercise independent judgment on behalf of a client) and is concerned with a practitioner's relationship with clients whereas newly proposed §10.10(d) is concerned with applicable conflict of interest laws, regulations or codes of professional responsibility as they relate to Government employees. Accordingly, it is felt that the suggested addition to §10.66 would be inappropriate.

Two commenters suggested the addition of a new section to be designated as §10.ll(c), adapted from a notice in the Official Gazette (1064 O.G. 12) "Reinstatement of Patent Attorneys and Agents to Practice Before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office." Such a change is not adopted in this rule package but is under consideration for a future rule change.

Two comments were received concerning the differences in the language used in proposed §§10.10(b) and 10.23(c)(13) and the need to avoid inconsistencies in these two sections. In particular, §10.10(b) (last paragraph) included "providing assistance," whereas §10.23(c)(13) did not; and §10.23(c)(13) recited "knowingly," whereas §10.10(b) did not. This suggestion is being adopted. Amended §10.23(c)(13) will include the language "providing assistance" as it appears in §10.10(b) and §10.10(b) will be changed to include the word "knowingly."

It was suggested by two commenters that additional explanatory commentary be provided with respect to newly proposed §§10.10(c) and (d). It is felt that this is unnecessary in connection with the rule change. Government employees with questions concerning applicable conflict of interest laws, regulations or codes of professional responsibility should address these questions to their respective Offices of General Counsel. With respect to further comment by the Office concerning practice by Government employees before the PTO, the last paragraph under Supplementary Information in the Notice of proposed rulemaking provides sufficient clarity on this issue.

Two comments were received concerning the status of individuals who may be affected by this rule change. These individuals should contact the Office of Enrollment and Discipline (OED). In addition, the Office will publish a notice in the Official Gazette listing all individuals registered as inactive and their last known address.

Two commenters correctly observed that proposed §10.10(b) does not require a written statement of official duties for an officer or Government employee whose official duties require the preparation and prosecution of applications for patent.

The citation to the Commissioner's decision indicating that Mr. Athridge's name has been entered on the "active" list of registered attorneys and agents entitled to practice before the PTO in patent cases has been added to the discussion under Supplementary Information as suggested.

The suggestion that the term "contrary to" be changed to "in violation of" in proposed §10.23(c)(20) has not been adopted. The term "contrary to" is considered preferable.

Two comments were received concerning the continued effect of an opinion rendered by the Acting United States Attorney General, 41 Op. Att. Gen. 21, 1949 Dec. Comm'r Pat. 1 (1949). In response, the Commissioner advises that the PTO maintains the import of that decision is unchanged with respect to practice before the PTO by Government employees. See In re Athridqe, 230 USPQ 470 (Comm'r Pat. 1986).

Other Considerations

This rule change will not have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment or the conservation of energy resource.

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Small Business Administration that the rule change will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The rule change allowing Government employees who meet the requirements set forth at 37 CFR 10.7 to have their names placed on the Patent and Trademark Office register of attorneys and agents would not be expected to result in an increase of fees charged by attorneys and agents to entities, including small entities.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect to the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The PTO has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the national government and the state as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

The rule change will not impose any additional burden under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq. Office of Management and Budget approval of the registration information reporting requirements contained in the proposed rules was extended until July 31, 1990. [OMB Control No. 0651-0012].

Deposit of Biological Materials for Patent Purposes

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Notice of Proposed Rulemaking
Summary: This notice sets forth rules that the Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is proposing to govern the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes. The proposals are directed to the procedural requirements for making a deposit of a biological material for patent purposes in the United States when it is determined that a deposit is necessary. In addition to the examining procedures, the proposals address the conditions which are required for an acceptable deposit, replacement of a deposit, and conditions which may be placed on access to the deposit once the patent is granted. Interested parties are invited to comment on the proposed rules.
Dates: Comments must be received on or before Jan. 9, 1989 to insure consideration. A public hearing will be held on Jan. 11, 1989, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Requests to present oral testimony at the hearing should be received on or before Jan. 9, 1989.
Address: Address written comments to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231 marked to the attention of Charles E. Van Horn.

The hearing will be held in the Commissioner's Conference Room in Crystal Park 2, Room 912. Written comments and a transcript of the public hearing will be available for public inspection in Crystal Plaza Bldg. 2-5C15.
For Further Information: Charles E. Van Horn or Harris A. Pitlick by telephone at (703) 557-4035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: Every patent must contain a written description of the invention sufficient to enable a person skilled in the art to which the invention pertains to make and use the invention. Where the invention involves a biological material and words alone cannot sufficiently describe how to make and use the invention in a reproducible or repeatable manner, the required biological material must either be known and readily available and likely to continue to be available or be deposited in a suitable depository to obtain a patent. Access to a deposit during the pendency of a patent application relying upon it will be governed by the same criteria used to consider access to the patent application. Samples of the deposited material must become publicly available upon issuance of the patent. The deposit will be considered part of the patent disclosure.

A draft policy statement on the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes was circulated among interested bar and industry groups and published in the BNA-Patent, Trademark and Copyright Journal on May 22, 1986. After reviewing written comments on the statement, an advance notice of proposed rulemaking setting forth rules being considered for deposits of biological materials for patent purposes was published on Sept. 9, 1987 in the Federal Register, 52 FR 34080, and on Sept. 29, 1987 in the Official Gazette, 1082 O.G. 47. Numerous organizations and individuals filed comments in response to the advance notice.

The rules being proposed by the Office prescribe the conditions under which a deposit may be made, the kinds of materials that may be deposited, the type of depository which is acceptable to the Office, the time for making an original deposit, the procedures and obligations applicable to the making and maintaining of a deposit and its possible replacement, the term of a deposit and other matters relating to the deposit of a biological material for patent purposes. In general, the rules being proposed by the Office would continue and clarify both long-standing practices of the Office and judicially developed principles of patent law. The explanations associated with the rules that are ultimately adopted along with the substantive content of the comments and responses concerning the draft policy statement, the advance notice of proposed rulemaking and this notice of proposed rulemaking will be incorporated into a set of guidelines that will be published in the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure.

Familiarity with the advance notice is assumed. Changes in the text of the rules proposed in this notice from the text of the rules published for comment in the advance notice are discussed.

The comments received in response to the advance notice are analyzed.

Changes in Text of Advance Notice

Several changes have been made in the text of the rules being proposed from the text of the rules which were published for comment in the advance notice. Those changes are discussed below.

Section 1.200 as published in the advance notice has been revised by replacing the term "after insertion in a host" in the first sentence with "indirectly." The former term was too narrow in scope. Indirect replication is meant to include those situations where the biological material is only capable of replication when another self-replicating biological material is present. Self-replication after insertion in a host is one example of indirect self-replication. Examples of indirect replicating biological materials include viruses, phages, plasmids, symbiants, and replication defective cells.

Section 1.200 has been further changed by modifying the list of representative examples in the second sentence to include at least one material listed in the third sentence to indicate the lists are not intended to be mutually exclusive.

Section 1.200 has been further changed by deleting the last sentence thereof so that no materials are explicitly excluded from the definition of biological material.

Section 1.201(a) as published in the advance notice has been completely rewritten so as not to refer to specific requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. The rule as proposed states that where a claimed invention is or relies on a biological material which is not known and readily available to the public and which cannot be described in writing alone, the disclosure may include a deposit of a biological material deposited in a depository and under conditions complying with these regulations.

Section 1.201(b) as published in the advance notice has been revised by replacing the term "in a reproducible manner" with the term "without undue experimentation" to assure the same standard for enablement regardless of whether biological materials are involved.

Section 1.201(b) has been further changed by deleting the second sentence thereof. The definition of "known and readily available" is not intended to be limited by rule. In the third sentence thereof (now the second sentence thereof), the term "accessible" has been replaced with "readily available" for consistency in terminology.

Section 1.201(c) as published in the advance notice has been revised by deleting the term "one or more requirements of" as redundant and to avoid any suggestion of limitation as to the number of requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 which can be met with the filing of a deposit.

Sections 1.202(a) and (b) as published in the advance notice have been changed to §§1.202(a)(i) and 1.202(a)(ii), respectively, and revised to indicate that a deposit "shall" be made in an acceptable depository under paragraph (a)(i) or (a)(ii). The Office will not accept for patent purposes any deposit not made in a depository under §1.202(a).

Upon publication of final rules on the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes, the Office will publish a list of International Depositary Authorities (IDAs). Any other depository seeking status under paragraph (a)(ii) of §1.202 would be required to comply with the applicable rule as adopted.

Section 1.202(b) as published in the advance notice has been changed in proposed §1.202(a)(ii) by including governmental agencies among the impartial consultants and by simplifying the language in subparagraph (3).

Section 1.202(c) as published in the advance notice has been changed to §1.202(b). It has been revised to refer to a depository under paragraph (a) of this section and to indicate that the substitute deposit must be viable when the biological material is of a kind capable of self-replication.

Section 1.202(d) as published in the advance notice has been changed to §1.202(c). It has been revised to refer to a depository seeking or acquiring status under paragraph (a)(ii) of this section. The word "said" in subparagraph (5) has been deleted and appropriate commas inserted in subparagraphs (4) and (5).

A new paragraph (d) is proposed to be added which would prescribe how an acceptable depository limited to certain kinds of biological material may extend the kinds of such material for which it wishes to be recognized by the Office.

Section 1.203(a) as published in the advance notice has been rearranged to clarify that a requirement for a deposit by the examiner will be made no later than the date the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due is mailed.

Section 1.203(b) as published in the advance notice has been revised by deleting the terms "in a depository defined in §§1.202(a) and (b)" and "in the depository defined in §§1.202(a) or (b)." These terms are now redundant in view of the proposed change to §§1.202(a) and (b) as published in the advance notice. Section 1.203(b) has been further revised by adding that the applicant shall promptly submit the verified statement but that when the person corroborating the fact that the biological material which is deposited is the same as the biological material described in the application as filed is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, the statement need not be verified. The language for the content of the statement has been rearranged to require that the biological material which is deposited is the same biological material described in the application as filed.

Section 1.204 as published in the advance notice has been changed to indicate changes in the conditions under which a replacement deposit may be made.

Section 1.204(a) has been changed to indicate that the rule prescribing the time for making a replacement deposit is subject to proposed paragraphs (e), (f) and (g) of the rule and that this time is extendable upon petition, only for sufficient cause, and for a reasonable time specified. Any request for such extension must be filed on or before the day on which action is due, but in no case will the mere filing of the request effect any extension. The word "new" has been replaced with "replacement" to provide antecedent basis for "replacement" later on in the paragraph.

Section 1.204(a) has been further changed to indicate that a replacement deposit shall be made in any acceptable depository under §1.202(a). The Office believes that where a replacement is necessary, the depositor should be free to make a replacement in any acceptable depository even though a new depository may consider it to be a new deposit.

Section 1.204(b) has been changed by adding the term "if applicable" after "viability test." Where the biological material deposited is of a material not capable of self-replication, a viability test clearly would not apply. It is the current position of the Office that a material that cannot be replicated directly or indirectly cannot form a proper basis for a deposit of biological material, but that is an issue of substantive patent law not addressed by these proposed rules.

Section 1.204(b) has been further changed by rearranging the first sentence thereof to clarify that notification to the Office of a replacement deposit is to be made in each affected application or patent. The penultimate sentence of §1.204(b) has been changed by replacing the term "the original deposit" with "that originally deposited" to make it clear that the replacement deposit is to be the same as the original deposit, as deposited.

Section 1.204(b) has been further changed to distinguish between the type of statement which must be furnished in connection with a replacement deposit in a pending application vis-a-vis a patent. If in a pending application, the statement shall state that the biological material which is deposited as a replacement is the same biological material described in the application as filed. If in a patent, the statement shall state that the replacement deposit is identical to that originally deposited. The statement must be verified by a person in a position to corroborate the facts listed in the statement except where the person is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, in which case the statement need not be verified.

Section 1.204(c) has been changed by replacing the term "three months after learning or after receiving written notice from a depository that a replacement deposit is needed" with "the time required in this section."

Section 1.204(d) has been clarified by changing "replaced sample" to "replacement deposit." Also, the term "application or" has been deleted since its continued presence would be inconsistent with other changes in §1.204 as published in the advance notice.

A new paragraph (e) to §1.204 as published in the advance notice is proposed to be added to indicate that in a pending application, the time for making a replacement deposit is the same as the time for making an original deposit, that the applicant shall promptly notify the Office after receiving notice that the depository possessing the original deposit cannot furnish samples for any reason, and that a replacement deposit can be made for any reason.

A new paragraph (f) to §1.204 as published in the advance notice is proposed to be added to indicate that a replacement deposit is unnecessary where the biological material, in accordance with proposed §1.201(b), need not be deposited.

A new paragraph (g) to §1.204 as published in the advance notice is proposed to be added to indicate that no replacement deposit of the biological material is necessary where a viable deposit is in the depository but the depository, for national security, health or environmental safety reasons, is unable to provide samples to requesters outside of the jurisdiction where the depository is located.

A new paragraph (h) to §1.204 as published in the advance notice is proposed to be added to indicate that a viable deposit may not be replaced in a patent where the depository can furnish samples but that nothing in the regulations is intended to prohibit a patentee from making an additional deposit of a biological material where an earlier deposit, otherwise viable, has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification. A viable deposit, relied on for patent purposes, even though contaminated or no longer capable of functioning as described in the specification, would provide the best evidence of whatever it was that was originally deposited and should be preserved.

Section 1.206 as published in the advance notice has been changed to indicate that viability is only relevant to biological materials that are capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly.

Paragraph (a) of §1.206 has been changed by inserting, after the term "biological material," the term "that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly." The term "relative to" in the last sentence of paragraph (a) has been changed to "regarding."

Paragraph (b) of §1.206 has been changed by inserting, after the term "for each deposit," the term "of a biological material defined in paragraph (a) of this section." In both paragraphs (b)(1) and (b)(2), an editorial change has been made by changing "Name" to "The name."

Paragraph (c) of §1.206 has been changed by replacing "§§1.202(a) or (b)" with "§1.202(a)" to be consistent with proposed §1.202.

Section 1.207 as published in the advance notice has been changed by indicating that certain requirements which a depositor may impose before samples of a deposited biological material shall be furnished by a depository are permissible under the rules.

Paragraphs (a) and (b) of §1.207 as published in the advance notice, with modification, are now subparagraphs (1) and (2), respectively, under paragraph (a). Subparagraph (2) states that removal of restrictions on the availability of the deposited material upon the granting of the patent are subject to paragraphs (b) and (c). Paragraph (c) as it appeared in the advance notice is now new paragraph (d).

A new paragraph (b) to §1.207 is proposed to be added which is patterned after Rules 11.4(c), (e) and (g) of the Budapest Treaty. Paragraph (b) permits the depositor to contract with the depository to require that samples of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if a request for a sample, made during the term of the patent, is in writing, signed and dated; contains the name and address of the requesting party and the accession number of the deposit; and is communicated in writing by the depository to the depositor along with a copy of the request, the date on which the sample was furnished, and the name and address of the party to whom the sample was furnished.

A new paragraph (c) to §1.207 is proposed to be added which permits the depositor to require that samples of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if the requesting party has agreed in writing, not to make the deposited biological material or any biological material derived therefrom available during the term of the patent to any third party without the written permission of the depositor, and to asume the burden of proof concerning compliance with the agreement. With the exception of the Commissioner and an acceptable depository under §1.202 in which the requesting party has made a new deposit for patent purposes of the deposited biological material or any biological material derived therefrom, any person or entity other than the requesting party and the depositor shall be deemed to be a third party under this paragraph. For the purposes of this paragraph, any biological material shall be deemed to be derived from the deposited biological material if it is replicated from, or would not have been produced but for access to, the deposited biological material, provided that the derived matter still exhibits the essential characteristics of the deposited biological material.

Both the Commissioner and an acceptable depository under §1.202 in which the requester has made a deposit for patent purposes are excepted from the scope of the term "third party" in order not to discourage innovation. Without the exception, a requesting party could not obtain a patent on some inventions without either written permission of the depositor or violating the agreement under which the deposit was obtained.

The term "essential characteristics" in the proviso is intended to mean those characteristics of the deposited biological material which are necessary to the practical utility of the deposited materials for any purpose - not simply those that may be necessary to the utility of the invention defined in one or more patents relying on the deposit for patent purposes. This definition has been adopted to provide some measure of protection to the depositor beyond the specific structure, utilities, properties, or functions that are described in the patent(s), yet are nevertheless inherently characteristic of the deposited material. The definition would include mutations and biological fragments that would be embraced by the doctrine of equivalents - performing substantially the same function in substantially the same way to produce substantially the same result. The definition would also include both obvious and nonobvious modifications of the deposited material so long as they possessed the essential characteristics of the deposited material, even if not known to the depositor. While the discovery of unrecognized functions and properties is to be encouraged, the discovery would not have taken place but for access to the deposited material. Nevertheless, without the proviso as part of the rule, the search for new discoveries based on the deposited material may be discouraged. The Office is seeking to maintain some balance between the interests of the patentee in monitoring the names of those who have gained access to the deposited material during the life of the patent, on the one hand, and the interest in promoting progress in the useful arts, on the other hand. It is recognized that this effort to define an appropriate scope for this undertaking may not meet with unanimous approval. Alternative approaches and suggestions for an appropriate definition are solicited and will be considered.

As an illustration of the scope of proposed §1.207(c), consider the following hypothetical:

> Gene A and gene B are genes located near to one another on the same chromosome in a eukaryote. Genes A and B do not overlap one another. Gene A is molecularly cloned and is the subject of a deposit for patent purposes as a DNA insert in vector V, a plasmid. The hybrid vector is designated as pVA. Vector V is a well-known and publicly available vector.

In each of the situations 1-3 (but not situation 4), it has been assumed that each of the derived materials will possess the essential characteristics of the deposited plasmid.

Situation 1: Requestor R receives from a depository the plasmid pVA. R must receive written permission from the patentee to distribute pVA to a third party.

Situation 2: Requestor R receives from a depository the plasmid pVA and modifies pVA in region A (the insert) in an obvious (within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. 103) manner to produce pVAO. R must receive written permission from the patentee to distribute pVAO to a third party.

Situation 3: Requestor R receives from a depository the plasmid pVA and modifies pVA in an unobvious (within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. 103) manner to produce pVAU. R must receive written permission from the patentee to distribute the plasmid pVAU to a third party, except that R could file a patent application on pVAU and deposit pVAU in a depository for patent purposes without written permission from the patentee.

Situation 4: Requestor R receives from a depository the plasmid pVA and uses the insert A in pVA as a hybridization probe to isolate genomic DNA from the same eukaryotic species from which gene A was isolated. Insert A is the original probe used to "walk" down the chromosome on which gene B is discovered. Gene B is unrelated, except by chromosomal linkage, to gene A. Gene B when inserted into a vector is patentable. Gene B could not have been isolated any other way than that described here. Gene B is then inserted into vector V to create the patentable plasmid pVB. R need not receive written permission from patentee to distribute pVB to a third party, and R could file a patent application on pVB and deposit pVB in a depository for patent purposes without written permission from the patentee.

This proposed constraint on access to the deposited material after the patent issues does not restrict access to the material to any person to whom the patent disclosure is addressed, and provides an undertaking by one requesting access which is an appropriate aid, given the nature of biological material, to assist the patent owner in the protection of property rights under the patent grant. To comply with the provision as proposed, the requesting party could present a written request for a sample to the depository containing the information and agreement required by proposed paragraphs (b) and (c) of §1.207.

The Office solicited comments in the advance notice of proposed rulemaking on the advisability of and rationale for seeking a provision in the law that would permit the type of restrictions on access to a deposit after the patent issues that were recommended in the Apr. 8, 1987, World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) report on the Industrial Property Protection of Biotechnological Inventions. Most comments received were in favor of the recommended restrictions, but very few provided any thoughtful analysis of why such restrictions are advisable or appropriate. Accordingly, except as noted in proposed §§1.207(b) and (c), the recommendations made in the WIPO report are not being incorporated into the text of the rules proposed at this time.

The recommendations in the WIPO report which are not being incorporated at this time are those (1) to use the biological material only for experimental purposes concerning the invention, and (2) not to export the biological material except to a country for which a relevant patent has been granted. Although these recommendations are not being included in the proposed rules, the Office may include them in the final rules if the public response provides a justification and rationale for departing from present policy and practice.

It is not clear precisely what the scope of permissible use is of a patented invention during the term of the patent. Mere use of a patented product or process, even for purposes of personal convenience, ordinarily constitutes infringement. Aro Mfg. Co. v. Convertible Top Co., 377 U.S. 476 (1964). There is a line of authority which indicates that a person who makes and uses a patented product does not infringe if the use is for purposes of research or experimentation and not for profit. Chesterfield v. U.S., 159 F.Supp. 371, 116 USPQ 445 (Ct. Cl. 1958). The so-called experimental use exception is discussed in detail in Roche Products, Inc. v. Bolar Pharmaceutical Co.,733 F.2d 858, 221 USPQ 937 (Fed. Cir. 1984). If the recommendation was intended to define the limits of permissible use which are consistent with the right to exclude others under the patent law (35 U.S.C. 154), then there would be no need for the requester to undertake not to do anything other than that which is permitted by law, for the requester would already be bound by the law. It can also be argued that under existing law a person could infringe and challenge the validity of the patent, but the sample could not be used if the person independently undertook not to use the deposited material for other than experimental purposes. If the recommendation was designed to regulate a broader scope of activity than is permitted by law, the Commissioner is without legal authority to propose such a regulation (35 U.S.C. 6). Moreover, it is not clear that the Commissioner has the legal authority to regulate a requester's own use of deposited biological material which is not patented. For example, it is not clear that the Commissioner could propose a rule regulating a requester's own use of an unpatented hybridoma which was deposited for patent purposes to comply with 35 U.S.C. 112 to support claims to a monoclonal antibody produced therefrom. Nor does the Commissioner have the legal authority to regulate activity which may occur outside the territorial limits of the United States.

Further comment is solicited on the advisability of and necessity for adopting a regulation to limit a requester's use to experimental purposes. Specific suggestions are requested as to how to draft a regulation which both accomplishes the intended purpose and is not inconsistent with law.

The recommendation relating to the prohibition of exporting the biological material raises issues of international comity and requires consideration of a broader spectrum of international harmonization issues. The Budapest Treaty (Article 5) provides that restrictions on exports and imports of microorganisms should apply only where the restriction is necessary in view of national security or the dangers to health or the environment. A concern is what the over-all economic effect would be on the United States if other countries adopted regulations on prohibition of exports similar to the WIPO recommendation. The Office is well aware of the probability that samples of a deposited biological material could be exported from the United States to a country where the invention could be practiced without infringement or compensation to the patent owner, with the possibility of supplying a significant portion of the world market. While such an event would be manifestly unfair to the patent owner, the question remains as to the most effective way to prevent this inequity while preserving a role of the patent system in disseminating information on how to make and use an invention once the patent is granted.

Another issue that is raised by the export constraint is the authority of the Commissioner to implement such a change by regulation. A deposit is, after all, an integral part of the enabling disclosure of the patent grant with which it is associated yet there is no restriction placed on the sale or export of any other patent document or the enabling disclosure contained therein to countries foreign to the United States. While it is recognized that there may be much more technical know-how associated with a sample of a deposited biological material than with a typical patent disclosure, the amount of information required to practice any invention on a commercial scale is partly dependent on the technical simplicity of the invention. Further, if the United States now thinks that such a restriction is in its best interest, it would provide encouragement to other countries to adopt similar restrictions and retain exclusions from patentable subject matter, for example, that the United States has been encouraging other countries to remove. To unilaterally adopt such a policy may not be in the long term interests of the United States.

Further comment is solicited, with particular consideration of international implications, on the advisability of adopting a regulation to limit a requester's ability to export the biological material and whether such a regulation could be promulgated under existing law. Specific suggestions are requested as to how to draft a regulation which both accomplishes the intended purpose and is not inconsistent with law.

Section 1.208(a) as published in the advance notice has been changed by inserting the term "pursuant to 37 CFR 1.104" after "determine" in the first sentence thereof to make it clear that the examiner's determination regarding any deposit issues is part of, and not separate from, the examination process. The second sentence of paragraph (a) has been changed to indicate that a deposit in any acceptable depository under §1.202(a) shall be accepted for patent purposes if made under conditions complying with §1.207(a). The sentence as published in the advance notice limited the applicable depositories to International Depositary Authorities (IDAs). The third sentence of paragraph (a) has been changed by inserting the term "or replaced" after the term "has not been made" to be consistent with the changes made in proposed§1.204 on replacement deposits.

Section 1.208(b)(1) has been changed by inserting the term "original or replacement" after the first appearance of the term "acceptable" to be consistent with the changes made in proposed §1.204 on replacement deposits.

Response to and Analysis of Comments

Written comments from twenty (20) sources were timely received in response to the advance notice. Some suggestions made in comments have been adopted as presented or in modified form and others have not been adopted. A detailed analysis of the comments follows.

Comment:

Three comments questioned the wisdom of rules on deposit requirements at this time in view of the ongoing evolution in the biotechnology arts, changing ideas about deposit requirements, and a dearth of case law on the subject. Suggestions were made that the proposed rules instead be incorporated as guidelines in M.P.E.P. 608.01(p)C.

Response:

Issues surrounding deposits of biological materials vis-a-vis patent applications have existed for a long time. See, e.g., Ex parte Kropp, 143 USPQ 148 (Bd. Pat. App. 1959). The Office believes that a sufficient number of issues have been decided to warrant the promulgation of regulations at this time so that applicants for patent will have more certainty about what the Office will require in the area of deposits. The proposed rules are designed to address procedural requirements for the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes while preserving flexibility to accommodate changes in substantive law in relation to deposits.

Comment:

The proposed rules would trap Americans into losing Paris Convention rights in Japan. The reforms incorporated by the rules should be introduced in the context of discussions on the Budapest Treaty or on a bilateral basis with Japan.

Response:

The promulgation of rules to administer deposit practice in the United States will not have any necessary extraterritorial effect outside the United States. Applicants for patents in foreign countries seeking priority based on an earlier filed United States application need to be aware, however, that failure to make a deposit as of the U.S. filing date may preclude the sought after priority.

Comment:

The deposit requirement should not be limited to biotechnological inventions but include other arts which require the use of materials which are not known and readily available.

Response:

The suggestion is not being adopted. No other arts are known, nor were any suggested, where words alone may be incapable of describing an invention sufficiently to enable one skilled in the art to make and use it in a reproducible manner. Notwithstanding the proposed rules on deposits, 35 U.S.C. 114 provides that an applicant may be required to furnish a model to exhibit the invention or, in the case of a composition of matter, specimens or ingredients for the purpose of inspection or experiment.

Comment:

More experience and judicial decisions are needed to determine what should be deposited. The limitation in § 1.200 to materials that are capable of self-replication is too narrow. It should include material that is essential for replication, such as sperm cells, eggs and pollen. It should also include other materials, such as monoclonal antibodies, so long as the material deposited results in satisfaction of the "how to make" requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112. For example, suppose an inventor invents and claims a novel monoclonal antibody, places the source hybridoma at an accepted depository with the condition that the depository will make the monoclonal antibody readily available upon issuance of the patent but that the hybridoma will remain secret, except to both the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks at any time and the public once the patent expires. This situation is analogous to In re Metcalfe, 410 F.2d 1378, 161 USFQ 789 (CCPA 1969). In the above example, the proposed enablement scheme should be sufficient to comply with the "how to make" requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112. Another comment suggested that proteins and enzymes, where their structures have not been characterized, should not be excluded from materials deposited by deposit of the "host cell capable of reproducing the nonliving material."

Response:

Biological material continues to be defined in proposed §1.200 in terms of a non-exhaustive list of what it includes. The last sentence of §1.200 has been deleted so that the definition of biological material for purposes of these regulations no longer explicitly excludes certain materials. 35 U.S.C. 112 requires that a person skilled in the art be enabled to make and use a claimed invention. The Office does not contemplate that there would be many situations where a material that is not capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly would be acceptable as a deposit under these regulations. An applicant is not precluded, however, in any given case from attempting to show why such a material should be acceptable. Although the Office is of the view that the deposit scheme outlined in the comment does not satisfy the "how to make" requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112, the proposed rules are flexible enough to accommodate either decision on this substantive issue. The proposed rules are intended to address procedural requirements rather than substantive issues relating to deposits.

Comment:

Viruses should be included in the second sentence of §1.200 as well as in the third sentenoe.

Response:

This section has been modified. Viruses are now listed among representative examples of biological materials which may be deposited either directly or indirectly. This is being done to make it clear that the examples of biological materials listed in the second and third sentences of §1.200 are not necessarily mutually exclusive.

Comment:

In response to a solicitation for comments on the question of whether the Office should consider requiring a deposit of plants in appropriate circumstances where it is clear that a deposit is possible and is necessary to complete the description of an invention under 35 U.S.C. 162, first paragraph, it was suggested that a deposit requirement not be extended to plant patents because it has not been shown that the absence of a requirement has been unsatisfactory. Others suggested such an extension is appropriate provided depositories existed for the particular plant material or depositories were available at a price which small breeders could afford.

Response:

The Office does not intend to propose rules on deposits under the Plant Patent Act (35 U.S.C. 161-164) at this time, nor will the Office take the position that a deposit is required under the present provisions of 35 U.S.C. 162.

Comment:

In response to a solicitation for comments on the setting of an appropriate minimum number of seeds to ensure availability of the seed through the enforceable life of the patent, it was suggested that the Office not try to set a minimum requirement for number of seeds because it will vary with the nature of the invention. The same comment went on to suggest that the Department of Agriculture participate in resolving questions concerning plant material and seed deposits.

Response:

The Office does not intend to propose rules quantifying a minimum number of seeds. However, the Department of Agriculture requires a deposit of 2500 seeds for the grant of a Plant Variety Protection certificate. The Office will consider 2500 to be a minimum number in the normal case, but will provide an applicant an opportunity to provide justification why a lesser number would be suitable under the circumstances of a particular case. As the reproduction of seeds will often take a substantial period of time, the Office will require a number that is likely to satisfy a reasonable demand for samples.

Comment:

The advance notice stated that if a hybrid variety is claimed, the Office will take a position that applicant must deposit the parent lines of the hybrid variety unless applicant is able to establish that propagation of the variety can be achieved by micropropagation or other techniques from the hybridized seed or plants grown from such seed, in which case, deposit of the hybrid seed itself would make an adequate deposit. In response, it was suggested that if the hybrid plant is claimed, deposit of the hybrid seed should be all that is required because it will produce a hybrid plant. The comment goes on to suggest that if the hybrid seed is claimed, the "how to make" requirement is satisfied by depositing the parental or inbred seed under conditions that this seed will become available once the patent expires. The hybrid seed would be publicly available from the depository during the enforceable life of the patent under this arrangement.

Response:

The proposed rules are intended to address procedural requirements rather than substantive issues relating to deposits. Whether conditions of deposit as suggested by the comment would be acceptable will have to be determined on a case-by-case basis.

Comment:

A comment from Japan was concerned about delay due to quarantine and inspection procedures in depositing seeds in the United States because there are no Japanese depositories for seeds. It asked for publication of procedures governing the deposit of seeds in a U.S. depository by foreign depositors.

Response:

The proposed regulations are intended to apply equally to all applicants regardless of country of origin. Where delay is a problem, the regulations provide for extensions of time under 37 CFR 1.136 in appropriate cases. Where a depository does not exist to accept a biological material that would need to be deposited before a patent was granted, the Office would take the position that the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 were not satisfied for such an invention.

Comment:

Several comments suggest that the rules misinterpret the law, such as the Lundak decision (723 F.2d 1216, 227 USPQ 90 (Fed. Cir. 1985)), in stating that the written description requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112, not otherwise satisfied at the time of filing, may be satisfied by an appropriate deposit after the filing date. Nor may a post-filing deposit satisfy the best mode requirement under the principles of the Gay decision (309 F.2d 768, 135 USPQ 311 (CCPA 1962)). It is suggested that a post-filing deposit may only be used to satisfy the enablement requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112.

Response:

Section 1.201(a) as published in the advance notice has been completely rewritten to indicate that where a claimed invention is, or relies on, a biological material which is not known and readily available to the public and which cannot be described in writng alone, the disclosure may include a deposit of a biological material deposited in a depository and under conditions complying with these regulations. The proposed rules are intended to address procedural requirements rather than substantive issues relating to deposits. Thus, where a deposit may be capable of meeting some requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112, the rules are intended to prescribe conditions under which the deposit would be suitable. The rules are not intended to address which requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 may be met by the making of deposits. If the substantive law is that, for example, the written description requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112, not otherwise satisfied at the time of filing, may not be satisfied by a post-filing date deposit of a biological material, such a deposit, even if made in accordance with these rules, would not satisfy the statute.

Comment:

Several comments questioned the "known and readily available" exception to the requirement for a deposit. One comment would delete the "known" requirement since it is not clear how one would establish that a biological material is known. On the other hand, another comment suggested that the "readily available" requirement be deleted because it is not required by 35 U.S.C. 112 and the meaning of "readily" is uncertain and would be subject to litigation.

Response:

The suggestion to change the term "known and readily available" is not being adopted. The meaning and intent behind the use of the term was discussed in the advance notice. The term has been a part of Office policy and practice since at least July 1971. See M.P.E.P. §608.01(p)C (3rd ed., rev. 29). Whether a biological material is "known and readily available" will continue to be decided on a case-by-case basis.

Comment:

The term "in a reproducible manner" in §1.201(b) should be replaced with —without undue experimentation— to assure the same standard for enablement regardless of whether biological materials are involved.

Response:
The suggestion is being adopted. If invention-dependent biological material cannot be made or isolated in a reproducible manner, then the invention necessarily cannot be practiced without undue experimentation.
Comment:
The term "and test" in §1.201(b) should be deleted since it contradicts the premise that the biological material be available without restriction.
Response:
The suggestion has been rendered moot by the deletion of the second sentence of §1.201(b) as published in the advance notice.
Comment:
One comment suggested that if the Office intends that the applicant be independent of the depository, then the term "depositor" in §1.202(b)(2) as published in the advance notice is unclear because it does not exclude the situation where depositor and depository are the same, such as a university in the case of an academic inventor. Another comment suggested a "rule of reason" approach with respect to suitability requirements for depositories under §1.202. For example, in some cases, such as with universities, there may be no available depository other than one which is not independent of the applicant yet the depository may meet all the other suitability criteria. That comment suggests the use of the word "should" in place of "must" in §1.202(b). The comment suggests, alternatively, to amend the rule to include a presumption of suitability.
Response:
None of the suggestions are being adopted. The term "depositor" is intended to include the party on whose behalf the deposit is made. The rationale of the Office in requiring that a depository, if not an International Depositary Authority (IDA), be independent of the depositor was adequately discussed in the advance notice. While the intent of the Office is that once the patent issues, the deposit be beyond the control of any party having rights in the patent, the Office believes that the term "depositor" in §1.202(b)(2) as published in the advance notice does exclude the situation where depositor and depository are the same. Section 1.202(b)(2) as published in the advance notice is now proposed §1.202(a)(ii)(2).
Comment:
The meaning of "an expeditious and proper manner" in §1.202(b)(6) is unclear.
Response:
The quoted term is considered to be the international norm. Compare Rule 2.3 of the Budapest Treaty. Section 1.202(b)(6) as published in the advance notice is now proposed §1.202(a)(ii)(6).
Comment:
A procedure should be established for a recognized depository under §1.202(b) to extend the list of kinds of biological materials accepted, analogous to Rule 3.3 of the Budapest Treaty.
Response:
The suggestion has essentially been adopted in new proposed §1.202(d).
Comment:
One comment suggested that §1.203(a) should be revised to permit depositing up until the time the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee is paid. Another comment suggested that a sentence be added at the end of §1.203(a) indicating that the mailing date of the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due will be brought to the applicant's attention at the time the request for deposit is made.
Response:
The comments appear to misconstrue §1.203(a) as published in the advance notice, which stated that a requirement for a deposit by the examiner will be made no later than the date the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due is mailed. The language in §1.203(a) has been rearranged to clarify this statement. The due date for making a deposit is governed by §1.208. Paragraph (c) thereof permits depositing up until the time the issue fee is paid and beyond if an appropriate extension of time is obtained. Notwithstanding the rules on time of making a deposit, the rules are not intended to supersede existing Office practice for withdrawing allowed applications from issue when warranted.
Comment:
One comment questioned why an original post-filing deposit requires a verified statement under §1.203(b) while a replacement deposit under §1.204(b) requires only a statement.
Response:
The rules as proposed require a verified statement when either an original or a replacement deposit is made, except if the person making the statement is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, in which case the statement need not be verified.
Comment:
A number of comments suggested that if a biological material subsequent to filing becomes known and readily available to the public, there should no longer be a requirement to make, maintain or replace a deposit of it.
Response:
The suggestion has been adopted with respect to replacement deposits in new proposed §1.204(f). The rules as published in the advance notice and as proposed do not require an original deposit when the biological material is known and readily available to the public.
Comment:
Since even an original deposit may be made at any time up to the time specified in §1.208(c), it can be made regardless of whether an earlier, same or different, deposit was made and became nonviable. The strict time conditions for replacement and the consequences that follow therefrom should thus not apply while the application is still pending.
Response:
The suggestion has been essentially adopted in new proposed §1.204(e). Paragraph (e) prescribes the time for making a replacement deposit while a patent application is still pending as the same time for making an original deposit. The applicant is required to promptly notify the Office after receiving notice that the depository cannot furnish samples of the deposit for any reason. A replacement deposit may be made during this time for any reason, including where the original deposit has become contaminated or lost its disclosed function. Section 1.204(b) is proposed to be revised to require corroboration that the replacement deposit is the same as the biological material described in the specification.
Comment:
The time for replacing a deposit under §1.204 should be extendable depending upon the situation, such as where there is a need for a new growing season to replace plant material.
Response:
The previous comment and response addressed the question of replacement deposits in pending applications. The suggestion has been essentially adopted for replacement deposits after the patent has issued in §1.204(a). Paragraph (a) is proposed to be revised by allowing for an extension of time and by subjecting the time requirement for making a replacement deposit to paragraphs (e), (f) and (g) of §1.204. Requests for extension of time shall be by petition, only for sufficient cause, and for a reasonable time specified. Any request for such extension must be filed on or before the day on which action is due, but in no case will the mere filing of the request effect any extension.
Comment:
Where there are generic claims, the requirement of the "same" biological material in §1.203(b) and the "identical" biological material in §1.204(b) should be broadened to include biological materials falling within the scope of the claims.
Response:
While an application is still pending, the rules as proposed require that an original or replacement deposit be the same as the biological material described in the application as filed. In cases where there is more than one biological material described, a number less than all of them may be required to be deposited depending upon the facts of the case. The question of whether a post-filing date deposit of a species described generically in the application as filed is the "same" under the rules will have to be decided on a case-by-case basis. There may be cases where a post-filing date deposit, while the same as a biological material described in the application as filed, is of a material different from that of the original deposit due to the circumstances of prosecution. So long as the material(s) deposited and ultimately relied on for purposes of satisfying 35 U.S.C. 112 are described in the application as filed, this requirement of the rules is satisfied.

Comment:

Where an original, functional, uncontaminated deposit loses its functionality or becomes contaminated, replacement should be permitted even if the depository could still furnish samples.

Response:

Proposed §1.204(e) permits replacement deposits during pendency of an application for any reason. The suggestion is not being adopted for already issued patents. As stated in the advance notice, the best evidence of what was originally deposited should not be lost through destruction or replacement if made in association with an existing patent. New paragraph (h) of §1.204 is proposed to be added to indicate that while a patentee may not replace a viable deposit where the depository can furnish samples, nothing in these regulations is intended to prohibit a patentee from making an additional deposit of a biological material where an earlier deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification.

Comment:

It should be explicitly stated in §1.204(a) that the term "for any reason" includes loss of viability.

Response:

The suggestion is not being adopted. While the term "for any reason" includes loss of viability, the Office does not believe it needs further explication in the rule.

Comment:

Under §1.204(a)(2), if a deposit is available within the jurisdiction of the depository, no replacement deposit should be necessary. This is so since if the depositor and a second depository are in the same jurisdiction as the original depository, they would also be unable to provide samples outside of the jurisdiction.

Response:

The suggestion is being essentially adopted. §1.204(a)(2) has been deleted and new §1.204(g) is proposed.

Comment:

The terms "after learning" and "from a depository" should be deleted from §1.204(c) since the first term is ambiguous and unnecessary and since written notice from anyone should be sufficient that a replacement deposit is needed.

Response:

The language objected to does not appear in proposed §1.204(c).

Comment:

Many comments questioned the statutory authority to regulate a patentee's conduct after expiration of the patent under §1.205, even under the guise of a condition precedent. A similar comment suggested that "beyond" in §1.205 be replaced with "during." One comment suggested that it is not clear in §1.205 whether the conditions of the first sentence are to be taken as fulfilling the requirements of the second sentence, or whether the second sentence is an additional requirement. The comment further suggested that it is unclear from the commentary whether there are different requirements according to whether a deposit is made under the Budapest Treaty or not.

Response:

These issues were addressed in the advance notice. The Office believes it is appropriate through rulemaking to assure that a deposited biological material necessary for practice of a patented invention be available without significant restriction after expiration of the patent for which the deposit was made by putting the burden on the depositor. The term of the deposit must comply with the requirements of each sentence of §1.205, whether or not the deposit is made under the Budapest Treaty.

Comment:

If a depository were permitted to maintain a deposit as it saw fit, based on demand and scientific interest, it would meet the public interest of having the deposit available after the patent expires and at the same time, avoid placing an excessive cost burden on the shoulders of patentees.

Response:

As the quid pro quo for receiving a patent, the statute requires a patentee to provide disclosure sufficient to enable one skilled in the art to make or use the invention. The statute does not provide for an expiration date for enablement. Section 1.205 as proposed is considered to be a reasonable compromise between a patentee's obligation to provide an enabling disclosure in reasonably permanent form and the loss of exclusivity upon the expiration of the patent. It is the statute which governs what the public interest is. A depository is not responsible for the public interest nor would a depository want this responsibility. Moreover, a depository's control over a deposit is limited by the contractual obligations between it and the depositor. The Office cannot compel a depository to make samples of a deposited material available beyond the term of deposit if the depositor has not contracted with the depository to do so.

Comment:

There should be a provision for extending the term of deposit under §1.205 by petition to the Commissioner in extraordinary situations and specifying under what conditions such a petition will be granted.

Response:

It is assumed that this comment intended for a third party to be able to extend the term of deposit. The term of deposit is a contractual maiter between the depositor and the depository. The only concern of the Office thereover is that the term of deposit complies with the rule.

Comment:

In response to a solicitation for comments in the advance notice on the advisability of and rationale for seeking a provision in the law that would permit the type of restrictions on access to a deposit after the patent issues that are recommended in the Apr. 8, 1987 WIPO report on the Industrial Property Protection of Biotechnological Inventions, every comment which took a position on the WIPO recommendations was in favor of their adoption. Additionally, it was suggested, for deposits whether or not under the Budapest Treaty, that requests for samples be in writing, signed and dated, contain the name and address of the requestor and the accession number of the deposit, and that this information be communicated in writing, along with a copy of the request, to the owner of the patent by the depository, as specified in Rules 11.4(c), (e) and (g) of the Budapest Treaty. Other comments were that requestors hold depositories and patent owners harmless regarding any damage caused by the deposited material, make a full accounting to patent owners of their uses of the deposited material, and provide proof that they have complied with all restrictions on access to deposited material.

Response:

The Office has concluded that its position expressed in the advance notice that samples of a deposited biological material be available without restriction upon the granting of a patent did not have the flexibility permitted by law and did not adequately protect the patent owner. Given the unique nature of deposit requirements in patent jurisprudence and their value in practicing the invention, it is not unreasonable to allow a depositor to impose some minimal conditions on the requesting party in the obtaining of samples from a depository during the patent term so long as the conditions do not interfere with making the patent disclosure public and do not effectively restrict the requesting party's access. New proposed §1.207(b) essentially incorporates the provisions of Rules 11.4(c), (e) and (g) of the Budapest Treaty. New proposed §1.207(c) incorporates some of the recommendations in the April 8, 1987 WIPO report. Recommendations concerning restrictions to experimental purposes and limiting exports need further study and thus are not being incorporated into the text of the proposed rules at this time. Suggestions that requesting parties hold depositories and patent owners harmless regarding any damage caused by the deposited material, make a full accounting to patent owners of their uses of the deposited material, and provide proof that they have complied with all restrictions on access to deposited material are not being adopted. The Office believes such additional requirements are not justified and would also be excessively burdensome to administer.

Comment:

Where all that remains to comply with 35 U.S.C. 112 is a deposit, §1.208(a) should specify that a provisional rejection be made under 35 U.S.C. 112.

Response:

The suggestion is not being adopted. So long as the applicant has not made an acceptable deposit or assured the Office that an acceptable deposit will be made within the required time, the claims are properly rejected without provision. It bears emphasizing that an applicant's assurance that an acceptable deposit will be made within the required time must include a statement as to precisely what will be deposited and under what specific conditions so that an examiner can readily determine whether there are any outstanding issues. A general statement tracking the rule that an "acceptable" deposit will be made, without further description, will not be accepted as an appropriate assurance that an acceptable deposit will be made.

Comment:

The requirement in §1.208(d)(3) of a taxonomic description of a deposit may be unduly burdensome in some situations, such as where taxonomy has no real bearing upon the claims, or unnecessary in others, such as where the species is not novel or the strain is novel but does not differ significantly from the rest of the species. The same comment suggests that where required by an examiner and where a satisfactory deposit has been made, a taxonomic description should be permitted to be added after filing without it being considered to be new matter, since it is inherent in the deposited material.

Response:

The extent to which a taxonomic description of the deposited material is required will depend on the facts of the case. It must be sufficient for purposes of 35 U.S.C. 112. It must be sufficient to permit verification that deposited biological material is in fact that disclosed (see, for example, proposed §1.203(b).) It must be sufficient to allow for a reasonable examination of the patent application so that prior art may be properly distinguished. Once the patent issues, it must be sufficient to aid in the resolution of questions of infringement. Whether the addition of taxonomic description information after filing is permissible will also depend on the facts of the case.

Comment:

Several comments from foreign sources appear to have interpreted a response in the commentary in the advance notice to the effect that applicants may not be granted foreign priority in applications filed in the United States if they fail to make a deposit in a permanent depository acceptable to that foreign country before the U.S. filing date. These comments suggest that foreign priority should be granted so long as a deposit is made according to U.S. rules.

Response:

The response in the advance notice correctly stated that applicants may not be granted priority in applications filed in countries foreign to the United States if they fail to make a deposit in a permanent depository acceptable to that foreign country before the filing date of the application in the United States. The response in the advance notice did not state that applicants in the United States could not obtain the benefit of the filing date of an earlier foreign-filed application under 35 U.S.C. 119 if a suitable deposit were not made before the U.S. filing date.

Comment:

Another comment along the same lines as the previous comment appeared to suggest that it is not clear if foreign priority will be granted in view of the proscriptions in 35 U.S.C. 104 regarding acts in a foreign country. As a corollary, clarification was requested as to what effect 35 U.S.C. 104 will have on the proof of a U.S. invention where the deposit was made in a foreign depository, such as in an interference situation.

Response:

The proposed rules are intended to address procedural requirements rather than substantive issues relating to deposits. The effects of 35 U.S.C. 104 vis-a-vis deposits in foreign countries are deemed to be substantive.

Comment:

The Office has been inconsistent in its deposit requirement practice. For example, submission of a copy of a contract for deposit of a sample has typically been considered insufficient proof of existence of deposit. The commentary should discuss elements of proving that a deposit has been made or assuring that it will be made.

Response:

Since the comment did not provide any examples, it is unknown to the Office to what extent, if any, it has been inconsistent with respect to the quantum of proof it will accept of the existence of a suitable deposit. A copy of a contract should always be accepted as evidence that a deposit existed, but the contract may not specify all the conditions necessary to accept the deposit for patent purposes. The existing guidelines as they appear in M.P.E.P. 608.01(p)C state that a copy of the contract with the depository may be required. Once the requirements for deposits are finalized and rules are in place, the Office intends to create a form with which any necessary proof of a suitable deposit may be submitted.

Comment:

One comment recognizes that the examiner has the initial burden of giving reasons why a deposit is required and suggests that an applicant's assertions as to why a deposit is not required should be taken at face value absent evidence to the contrary. The comment then goes on to suggest that certain presumptions should be made explicit. For example, an examiner's opinion about "unpredictability" should not be sufficient to sustain the examiner's burden that a deposit is required. The mere fact that a selection technique was used in the process of making a biological material should not create a presumption that the process is not reproducible. An opinion of an expert or that experiments have confirmed reproducibility should suffice to overcome a deposit requirement.

Response:

The Office does not believe that it is feasible to set rules or guidelines as to the type or character of proof which an examiner or applicant must present to meet the evidentiary burden on the issue of the necessity of a deposit. This is a substantive law issue which is highly dependent on the facts in each case. It is clear that the initial burden is on the Office, and that burden is not satisfied by a mere conclusionary statement.

Comment:

The requirement that inventors bear both the cost of a deposit in a depository and the cost of maintaining the material privately in case replacement is needed is burdensome and legal support is inadequate. An inventor should be able to choose which cost to bear. If an inventor chooses the depository and the deposit loses its viability, the public has not been any better protected than if the patentee held the deposit all along. If the patentee chooses to maintain the deposit, the patentee runs the risk that the patent will be held invalid if reasonable access is not granted, or the deposit is tampered with, or lost. There is no reason to believe that this would be common but if it did happen, there is little public harm. The public will have had the public disclosure in the patent. If the patent is invalidated, the patentee loses exclusivity. If the patent is not invalidated, it means that no deposit was necessary in the first place.

Response:

While clearly the cost of making and maintaining a deposit in a depository is a burden which applicants and patentees in other fields do not have, the requirement of a deposit in a depository independent of the depositor is the only way to assure that the public interest is served. It is no answer to say that if the depositor, serving as the depos.itory, fails to make samples available, the public is not harmed because the patent may be invalidated. The public may be denied the right to practice the invention after the patent has expired. On balance, public and patent owner interests are better served by independent depositories having the capability of storing and maintaining biological material.

Comment:

The rules should require that deposit information be included in the abstract of the disclosure.

Response:

The Office does not intend at this time to propose a rule requiring where deposit information should appear in a patent. There is no apparent compelling public interest to adopt a specific location for deposit information nor would the administrative burden of enforcing such a rule appear to be justified.

Comment:

There should be some provision which would allow payment to the patentee of a fee every time a request was made by a requestor for a sample of a deposit in an amount insufficient to be a restraint on the availability of the deposited material but enough to alleviate some of the financial burden on the patentee.

Response:

If the patentee is required to make a deposit to meet a statutory requirement for obtaining a patent, there is no good reason why the public should pay any fee beyond that for administrative handling.

Comment:

It was suggested that §1.207(c) (now §1.207(d)) be deleted. This provision appears to be unnecessary since a requestor could obtain this information from the depository or by reviewing the file history.

Response:

The suggestion is not being adopted. Certification is a service to depositories and requestors since the mere disclosure of a deposited material in a patent does not necessarily mean that it is available or accessible.

Other Considerations

The proposed rules are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel has Certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration that this proposed rule change is not expected to have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The proposed deposit practice will not impose extra work on patent applicants (whether small or large businesses or individuals).

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change being proposed is not a major rule under Executive Order 12991. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increases in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the national government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

This proposed rule contains a collection of information requirement subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act. A request to collect this information has been submitted to OMB for approval. Public reporting burden for this collection of information is estimated to average one hour per response, including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed to make a deposit or request a sample, and completing and reviewing the collection of information. It is further estimated that a respondent depository would spend about five hours collecting and submitting the necessary information to be recognized as a suitable depository by the Office. Send comments regarding this burden estimate or an other aspect of this collection of information, including suggestions for reducing this burden, to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231; and to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503

1.203 Time of making an original deposit.

Deposit of Biological Material

§1.200 Biological material

For the purposes of these regulations pertaining to the deposit of biological material for patent purposes, the term biological material shall include material that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly. Representative examples include bacteria, fungi including yeast, algae, protozoa, eukaryotic cells, cell lines, hybridomas, plasmids, viruses, plant tissue cells, lichens and seeds. Viruses, vectors, cell organelles and other non-living material existing in and reproducible from a living cell may be deposited by deposit of the host cell capable of reproducing the non-living material.

§1.201 Need to make a deposit

(a) Where a claimed invention is, or relies on, a biological material which is not known and readily available to the public and which cannot be described in writing alone, the disclosure may include a deposit of a biological material deposited in a depository and under conditions complying with these regulations.

(b) Biological material need not be deposited if it is known and readily available to the public or can be made or isolated without undue experimentation from known and readily available material. Samples will be considered to be readily available even though some requirement of law or regulation of the United States or of the country in which the depository institution is located permits access to the material only under conditions imposed for safety, public health or similar reasons.

(c) The reference to a specific organism or other biological material in a specification disclosure does not create any presumption that the specific material is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 or that a deposit in accordance with these regulations is required.

§1.202 Acceptable depository

(a) A deposit shall be made in

(1) any International Depositary Authority (IDA) as established under the Budapest Treaty on the International Recognition of the Deposit of Microorganisms for the Purposes of Patent Procedure, or

(2) any other depository recognized to be suitable by the Office. Suitability will be determined by the Commissioner on the basis of the administrative and technical competence, and agreement of the depository to comply with the terms and conditions applicable to deposits for patent purposes. The Commissioner may seek the advice of impartial consultants from the biotechnology industry or governmental agencies on the suitability of a depository. The depository must:

(i) Have a continuous existence;
(ii) Exist independent of the control of the depositor;
(iii) Possess the staff and facilities sufficient to examine the viability of a deposit and store the deposit in a manner which ensures that it is kept viable and uncontaminated;
(iv) Provide for sufficient safety measures to minimize the risk of losing biological material deposited with it;
(v) Be impartial and objective; and
(vi) Furnish samples of the deposited material in an expeditious and proper manner.

(b) If any depository under paragraph (a) of this section defaults or discontinues the performance of any of the tasks it should perform, the Office will recognize as a substitute in any pending application or patent a deposit, which must be viable if the biological material is of a kind capable of self-replication, made with an IDA or depository recognized to be suitable by the Office which is transferred to said depository from the defaulting depository in the manner required for replacing a deposit under §1.204.

(c) A depository seeking status under paragraph (a)(2) of this section must direct a communication to the Commissioner which shall:

(1) Indicate the name and address of the depository to which the communication relates
(2) Contain detailed information as to the capacity of the depository to comply with the requirements of paragraph (b) of this section, including information on its legal status, scientific standing, staff and facilities;
(3) Indicate that the depository intends to be available, for the purposes of deposit, to any depositor under these same conditions;
(4) Where the depository intends to accept for deposit only certain kinds of biological material, specify such kinds;
(5) Indicate the amount of any fees that the depository will, upon acquiring the status of suitable depository under paragraph (a)(2) of this section, charge for storage, viability statements and furnishings of samples of the deposit.

(d) A depository having status under paragraph (a) of this section limited to certain kinds of biological material may extend such status to additional kinds of biological material by directing a communication to the Commissioner in accordance with paragraph (c) of this section. If a previous communication under paragraph (c) of this section is of record, items in common with the previous communication may be incorporated by reference.

(e) Once a depository is recognized to be suitable by the Commissioner or has defaulted or discontinued its performance under this section, notice thereof will be published in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office.

§1.203 Time of making an original deposit

(a) An original deposit may be made at any time before filing an application for patent or, pursuant to a requirement that will be made by the examiner no later than the date the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due is mailed, during pendency of the application for patent.

(b) When the original deposit is made after the effective filing date of an application for patent, the applicant shall promptly submit a verified statement from a person in a position to corroborate the fact, and shall state, that the biological material which is deposited is the same biological material described in the application as filed, except if the person is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, in which case the statement need not be verified.

§1.204 Replacement of deposit

(a) Where a depository possessing the original deposit cannot furnish samples of the deposit for any reason, the depository shall, promptly after having noted its inability to furnish samples, notify the depositor of such inability, indicating the cause thereof. Subject to paragraphs (e), (f) and (g) of this section, the depositor shall be required to make a replacement deposit of the biological material which was originally deposited within three months of receiving notification that the depository cannot furnish samples. The period for satisfying this requirement is extendable upon petition, only for sufficient cause, and for a reasonable time specified. Any request for such extension must be filed on or before the day on which action is due, but in no case will the mer filing of the request effect any extension. The replacement shall be made in any acceptable depository under §1.202(a).

(b) An applicant or patent owner shall notify the Office in writing, in each application or patent affected, as soon as reasonably possible after a replacement deposit is made. This notification shall state the name and address of the depository, the accession number for the deposit, the date of making the deposit, the results of a viability test if applicable (as provided for in §1.206), the reason for making the replacement deposit, and include a verified statement, except that if made by an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, the statement need not be verified. If the replacement deposit relates to a pending application, the statement shall be by a person in a position to corroborate the fact, and shall state, that the biological material which is deposited as a replacement is the same biological material described in the application as filed. If the replacement deposit relates to a patent, the statement shall be by a person in a position to corroborate the fact, and shall state, that the replacement deposit is identical to that originally deposited. The notification shall be placed in the relevant application or patent file.

(c) A depositor's failure to replace a deposit within the time required by this section may cause the application or patent involved to be treated in any Office proceeding as if no deposit were made.

(d) In the event a deposit is replaced, the Office will apply a rebuttable presumption of identity between the original and the replacement deposit where the patent making reference to the deposit is relied upon during any Office proceeding.

(e) Where an application is still pending, the time for making a replacement deposit shall be the same as the time for making an original deposit under §1.203(a). The applicant shall promptly notify the Office after receiving notice that the depository possessing the original deposit cannot furnish samples of the deposit for any reason. A replacement deposit may be made during this time for any reason, including where the depository can furnish samples but the original deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification.

(f) In no case is a replacement deposit of a biological material necessary where the biological material, in accordance with §1.201(b), need not be deposited.

(g) No replacement deposit of the biological material is necessary where a viable deposit is in the depository but the depository for national security, health or environmental safety reasons is unable to provide samples to requesters outside of the jurisdiction where the depository is located.

(h) A patentee may not replace a viable deposit where the depository can furnish samples. Nothing in these regulations is intended to prohibit a patentee from making an additional deposit of a biological material where an earlier deposit, otherwise viable, has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification.

§1.205 Term of deposit

A deposit shall be made for a term of at least thirty (30) years after the date of a viable deposit and at least five (5) years after the most recent request for the furnishing of a sample of the deposited biological material was received by the.depository. In any case, samples must be stored under agreements that would make them available beyond the enforceable life of the patent for which the deposit was made.

§1.206 Viability of deposit

(a) A deposit of biological material that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly must be viable at the time of deposit and during the term of deposit. Viability may be tested by the depository. The test must conclude only that the deposited material is capable of reproduction. No evidence is necessarily required regarding the ability of the deposited material to perform any function described in the patent application.

(b) A viability statement for each deposit of a biological material defined in paragraph (a) of this section not made under the Budapest Treaty on the International Recognition of the Deposit of Microorganisms for the Purposes of Patent Procedure must be filed in the application and must contain:

(1) The name and address of the depository;
(2) The name and address of the depositor;
(3) The date of deposit;
(4) The identity of the deposit and the accession number given by the depository;
(5) The date of the viability test;
(6) The procedures used to obtain a sample if the test is not done by the depository; and
(7) A statement that the deposit is capable of reproduction.

(c) If viability test indicates that the deposit is not viable upon receipt, or the examiner cannot, for scientific or other valid reasons, accept the statement of viability received from the applicant, the examiner shall proceed as if no deposit has been made. The examiner will accept the conclusion set forth in a viability statement issued by a depository recognized under §1.202(a).

§1.207 Furnishing of samples

(a) The deposit must be made under conditions that assure that:

(1) Access to the deposit will be available during pendency of the patent application making reference to the deposit to one determined by the Commissioner to be entitled thereto under §1 14 and 35 U.S.C. 122, and
(2) Subject to paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, all restrictions imposed by the depositor on the availability to the public of the deposited material will be irrevocably removed upon the granting of the patent.

(b) The depositor may contract with the depository to require that samples of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if a request for a sample, during the term of the patent:

(1) is in writing, signed and dated:
(2) contains the name and address of the requesting party and the accession number of the deposit; and
(3) is communicated in writing by the depository to the depositor along with a copy of the request, the date on which the sample was furnished, and the name and address of the party to whom the sample was furnished.

(c) The depositor may require that samples of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if the requesting party has agreed in writing, not to make the deposited biological material or any biological material derived therefrom available during the term of the patent to any third party without the written permission of the depositor, and to assume the burden of proof concerning compliance with the agreement. With the exception of the Commissioner and an acceptable depository under §1.202 in which the requesting party has made a new deposit for patent purposes of the deposited biological material or any biological material derived therefrom, any person or entity othe than the requesting party and the depositor shall be deemed to be a third party under this paragraph. For the purposes of this paragraph, any biological material shall be deemed to be derived from the deposited biological material if it is replicated from, or would not have been produced but for access to, the deposited biological material, provided that the derived matter still exhibits the essential characteristics of the deposited biological material.

(d) Upon request, the Office will certify whether a deposit has been stated to have been made under conditions which make it available to the public as of the issue date of the patent grant provided the request contains:

(1) The name and address of the depository;
(2) The accession number given to the deposit;
(3) The patent number and issue date of the patent referring to the deposit; and
(4) The name and address of the requesting party.

§1.208 Examination procedures

(a) The examiner shall determine pursuant to §1.104 in each application if a deposit is needed, in case one has not been made, or if a deposit actually made is acceptable for patent purposes. A deposit accepted in any acceptable depository under §1.202(a) shall be accepted for patent purposes if made under conditions complying with §1.207(a). If a deposit is required and has not been made or replaced in accordance with these regulations, the examiner shall in an Office action reject the affected claims in the application under the appropriate provision of 35 U.S.C 112, explaining why a deposit is needed and/or why a deposit actually made cannot be accepted.

(b) The applicant shall respond to a rejection under paragraph (a) of this section by -

(1) Making an acceptable original or replacement deposit or assuring the Office in writing that an acceptable deposit will be made on or before the date of payment of the issue fee, or
(2) Establishing that the involved biological material is known and readily available to the public, or
(3) Arguing why a deposit is not required under the circumstances of the application considered. Other replies to the examiner's action shall be considered non-responsive. The rejection will be repeated until either paragraph (b)(1) or (b)(2) of this section is satisfied or the examiner is convinced that a deposit is not required.

(c) If an application is otherwise in condition for allowance except for the required deposit and the Office has received a written assurance that an acceptable deposit will be made on or before payment of the issue fee, the Office will mail to the applicant a Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due together with a requirement that the required deposit be made within three months. The period for satisfying this requirement is extendable under 37 CFR 1.136. Failure to make the required deposit in accordance with this requirement will result in abandonment of the application for failure to prosecute.

(d) For each deposit made pursuant to these regulations, the specification shall contain:

(1) Accession number for the deposit;
(2) Date of the deposit;
(3) Taxonomic description of the deposit and
(4) Name and address of the depository.

Foreign Filing of Secrecy Order Inventions

In Designated Countries

37 CFR Part 5

Under the provisions of 37 CFR Part 5, - Secrecy of Certain Inventions and Licenses to File Applications in Foreign Countries - the Patent and Trademark Office may, with the approval of the defense agency sponsoring the secrecy order, permit the filing of secrecy order applications under 37 CFR 5.5 in designated foreign countries with which the Government of the United States of America has entered into reciprocal patent secrecy arrangements.

The United States of America has detailed arrangements with 17 countries, most of whom are members of the Coordinating Committee for Multilateral Export Controls (COCOM). These arrangements provide protection for classified and other sensitive inventions when patent applications are being held in secret. These countries are as follows: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Spain, Turkey and United Kingdom.

Foreign Filing of Secrecy Order

Inventions In Spain

37 CFR Part 5

Under the provisions of 37 CFR Part 5 - Secrecy of Certain Inventions and Licenses to File Applications in Foreign Countries - the Patent and Trademark Office may, with the approval of the defense agency sponsoring the secrecy order, permit the filing of secrecy order applications under 37 CFR 5.5 in designated foreign countries. The designated countries are those where the Government of the United States of America has entered into reciprocal patent secrecy arrangements.

Such arrangements include the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) Agreement for the Mutual Safeguarding of Secrecy of Inventions Relating to Defense and for Which Applications for Patents Have Been Made (12 UST 43; TIAS 4672), which was signed at Paris, France on September 21, 1960, entered into force for the United States on January 12, 1961, with implementing procedures to the agreement entering into force on September 3, 1969.

Spain acceded to this NATO Agreement on August 10, 1987. On July 28, 1988, Spain notified the Secretary General of NATO that the implementing procedures shall be applicable to Spain as of that date.

The other NATO countries which adhere to this agreement are Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Turkey and United Kingdom. All of the above countries, except Italy, have also entered into force the implementing procedures; however, filing arrangements with Italy are subject to a separate agreement.

With the implementation of the NATO procedures, the United States of America may permit transfer to Spain and Spain will protect certain defense-related technical information in patent applications in Spain disclosing inventions which are the subject of patent applications held in secrecy in the United States of America. Spain will accord patent protection to these applications consistent with Spanish patent law.

The Patent and Trademark Office is providing for the addition of Spain as a country that is available for foreign filing of secrecy order applications in the following manner:

Type 1 secrecy orders entitled "Secrecy Order and Permit for Foreign Filing in Certain Countries" 51 Federal Register 32938, (September 17, 1986), 1071 Official Gazette 31, (October 21, 1986), revised 1090 Official Gazette 9, (May 3, 1988), list all available countries where foreign filing is authorized. The countries are: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Japan, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Turkey and United Kingdom.

As of the date of this notice, Spain will be included in all type 1 secrecy orders as one of the authorized countries for foreign filing. All type 1 secrecy orders now in force will be modified by the Patent and Trademark Office upon their renewal anniversary to include Spain as an authorized country. A sample copy of this new type 1 secrecy order appears in the Appendix.

Under all other Patent and Trademark Office secrecy orders, foreign filing in Spain will be considered on a case-by-case basis under 37 CFR 5.5. All principals, as defined in 37 CFR 5.2 to include the applicant, the applicant's successors, assignees and legal representatives, who requested, but were denied, Spain as a country for foreign filing under 37 CFR 5.5(c) since January 1, 1982, will have their petitions automatically reviewed within 90 days of the date of notice to determine if the invention may be foreign filed in Spain. In those instances where filing in Spain was requested, these principals will not have to file any petition under 37 CFR 5.5(c) before the Patent and Trademark Office in order to receive this review.

Any principals, including those under a type 1 secrecy order, presently having an application under secrecy order desiring to file the secrecy order application in Spain should file a petition under 37 CFR 5.5 naming Spain a designated country.

The Secretary of the Armed Services Patent Advisory Board, 5611 Columbia Pike, Room 332-A, Falls Church, VA 22041-5013, (703) 756-2430 will provide names of patent attorneys, and agents or other representatives in Spain authorized by the Government of Spain to have access to such secrecy order applications.

For further information contact, Kenneth L. Cage, Director of Group 220, by telephone at (703) 557-2877 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.

(Title 35, United States Code, Sections 181-188 (1952)

NOTICE: To the applicant(s) above named, his, her, or their heirs; and any and all of the assignee, licensees, attorneys and agents, hereinafter designated principals:

You are hereby notified that the above-identified patent application has been found to contain subject matter which discloses critical technology with military or space application. The unauthorized disclosure of such subject matter would be detrimental to the national security, and you are ordered to keep the subject matter secret (as required by 35 U.S.C. 181) and you are further ordered NOT TO PUBLISH OR DISCLOSE the subject matter to any person except as specifically authorized herein.

---

[1]Export Control Commodity Number (ECCN) on the Commodity Control List (Supplement No. 1 to 15 CFR 399.1).

[2]International Traffic in Arms Regulation (ITAR), 22 CFR 120-130.

Any other patent application already filed or hereafter filed in the U.S. or any foreign country which contains any significant part of the subject matter of the above-identified application falls within the scope of this Order. If such other patent application is not under a Secrecy Order imposed by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, it and the common subject matter immediately must be brought to the attention of the Director, Group 220, Attn: Licensing and Review, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231.

Publication or disclosure of the subject matter of the above-identified patent application, except as authorized herein or subsequently by the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, may subject the person publishing or disclosing the subject matter to the penalties of 35 U.S.C. 182, 185 and 186 (1952).

The principals may disclose, for legitimate business purposes,[3] the subject matter of the above-identified application to a U.S. citizen or to a person who is both admitted lawfully into the United States for permanent residence and is located in the United States provided the U.S. citizen or person is furnished with a copy of this Secrecy Order and is informed that this Secrecy Order is applicable to the subject matter disclosed.

Legitimate business purposes include selling or producing products for the commercial domestic marketplace, or for the commercial foreign marketplace providing that any required export license is obtained. Legitimate business purposes also include selling or otherwise disclosing technical data to foreign contractors or foreign governments after receiving the required export license or approval by the U.S. Government.

The principals shall notify the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks if a validated license is obtained from the Office of Export Administration or a license is obtained from the Director, Office of Munitions Control under regulations governing the export of technical data (15 CFR 379 of the Export Administration Regulations or 22 CFR 125 of the International Traffic in Arms Regulations).

[3]The term legitimate business purposes is to be interpreted consistent with DOD Directive 5230.25 entitled "Withholding of Unclassified Technical Data From Public Disclosure," issued by the Secretary of Defense on November 6, 1984, 32 CFR Part 250, 49 FR 484040 (December 10, 1984).

The subject matter of the above-identified application has been determined not to be encompassed by E.O. 10865, entitled "Safeguarding of Classified Information Within Industry" or E.O. 12356, entitled "National Security Information" and thus is not subject to the "Industrial Security Manual for Safeguarding Classified Information." However, since the disclosure of the subject matter would be detrimental to the national security, the subject matter must be safeguarded under conditions that will provide adequate protection and prevent access by unauthorized persons. When copies of the subject matter are no longer needed, they should be destroyed by any method that will prevent disclosure of the contents or reconstruction of the document.

The principals are permitted, subject to the conditions stated hereinafter, to file and prosecute a corresponding application for patent in each of the following countries: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Turkey and United Kingdom. The papers for each foreign application and its prosecution shall be transmitted to the sponsoring agency, identified herein, for forwarding through diplomatic channels for filing in the foreign country either directly by the principals or through the principals' foreign patent attorney or agent if authorized by the foreign government. Correspondence exclusively relating to payments of taxes and fees need not be sent through the sponsoring agency and diplomatic channels provided that such correspondence contains no information pertaining to the subject matter of the above-identified application.

International reciprocal agreements providing for the filing of patent applications under a Secrecy Order in the above-identified countries require the principals to furnish to the sponsoring agency identified herein (in addition to the papers to be filed in the foreign patent office) a copy of the specification (including any drawings annexed thereto, any resume and the claims included in the patent application) filed in the patent office of the foreign country. This copy will be furnished to the appropriate defense agency of the foreign government for information only and without prejudice to any rights of the principals. The filing date and serial number of the patent application should also be furnished to the sponsoring agency.

The principals shall request the foreign patent office to place in secrecy the foreign patent applications corresponding to the above-identified application and shall furnish a copy of this Secrecy Order and Permit with the first papers to be filed in the foreign patent office.

The use of this Permit shall constitute a waiver, unless otherwise required by the international agreements, of any claim to compensation for loss or damage due solely to the imposition of secrecy or similar treatment of the invention. Belgium, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Japan, Netherlands, Turkey and United Kingdom normally require a separate document confirming such a waiver.

In the case of Japan, the applicant shall ensure in its contract with its patent attorney that the patent attorney shall submit to the Japanese Patent Office a certified copy of this Secrecy Order and Permit. The submission of this Permit to the Japanese Patent Office is considered notification to the Government of Japan and the Secrecy Order status of the above-mentioned application and a corresponding Japanese application will be considered an Agreement Application referred to in 3(a) of the Protocol to the 1956 United States-Japan Agreement.

This Order should not be construed in any way to mean that the U.S. Government has adopted or contemplates adoption of the invention disclosed in this application and it is not any indication of the value of such invention.

SERVICE STATISTICS

- Assignment Processing —The days reported for recording trademark assignments have represented the number of days from receipt of assignments in the PTO to stamping reel and frame numbers on the documents. Once this has been done, the information is available to members of the public upon request. However, it has been learned that there is a large backlog of assignment cards to be filed in the appropriate location in the Assignment Search Room. The time frame for the cards to be filed is now 104 days from receipt of the assignment. We consider this intolerable. A special effort to correct this situation, as well as make other improvements in assignment processing is being initiated. More informative reports on assignment processing will be included regularly, starting next month.

HELPFUL HINTS

- Address to Which Correspondence is Sent Regarding Patent Maintenance Fees — Under 37 CFR 1.33(d), a "correspondence address" or change thereto may be filed with the Office during the enforceable life of a patent. This "correspondence address' will be used in any correspondence relating to maintenance fees unless a separate "fee address" has been specified solely for maintenance fee purposes as provided by CFR 1.363. Practitioners who do not wish to receive correspondence relating to maintenance fees must change the correspondence address in the patented file or provide the PTO with a fee address to which the correspondence should be sent. It is not required that a practitioner file a request for permission to withdraw pursuant to 37 CFR 1.36 solely for the purpose of changing the correspondence address in a patent, even though a withdrawal of a practitioner would change the correspondence address.

- Payor Number for Maintenance Fees — When a fee address has been specified as provided by 37 CFR 1.363, that address is assigned a "payor number". Processing time can be greatly reduced if practitioners cite that "payor number" when submitting a maintenance fee payment.

IMPROVEMENTS TO SERVICES

- Notice of Payor Number Assignment to Patents — The Patent Maintenance Division has changed the previous procedure used to print the "Notice of Payor Number Assignment to Patents" (Form PTOL-433), which combined patents/serial numbers from different requesters. Effective July 20, 1988, under the new procedure, individual Form PTOL 433 notices are being printed for each requester. This improvement was made as a result of a recommendation from a patent attorney.

- Drawing Practice Review — A PTO team has been established to review the PTO's practice in regard to patent application drawings. The objectives are to (1) review and clarify specific requirements for the quality of drawings and propose the best means of informing applicants and (2) determine the most effective workflow for review of drawings, request and receipt of corrected drawings, and review of corrected drawings. Comments and recommendations regarding the PTO's drawing practice are invited. In addition, anyone who wishes to meet with the team and discuss drawing matters is welcome. Comments or requests to meet with the team should be sent by Nov. 22 to:

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents Available for Public Use in Patent Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent Depository Libraries (PDLs), receive current issues of U.S. Patents and maintain collections of earlier-issued patents. The scope of these collections varies from library to library, ranging from patents of only recent years to all or most of the patents issued since 1790.

These patent collections, which are organized in patent number sequence, are available for use by the public free of charge. Each of the PDLs, in addition, offers supplemental reference publications of the U.S. Patent Classification System, including the Manual of Classification, Index to the U.S. Patent Classification, Classification Definitions, and provides technical staff assistance in their use to aid the public, in gaining effective access to information contained in patents. CASSIS (Classification And Search Support Information System); which provides direct, on-line access to Patent and Trademark Office data, is available at all PDLs. Facilities for making paper copies of patents from either microfilm or paper collections are generally provided for a fee.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent collections among the PDLs and in their hours of service to the public, anyone contemplating use of the patents at a particular library is advised to contact that library, in advance, about its collection and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

SECTION 2.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).
